

Section One Euston to Waterloo

Section One

Euston to Waterloo

We are only consulting on a single option for this central section of the route.

Detailed studies undertaken in partnership with the Boroughs have shown that there is only one practical way for the tram to get between these two points.

It is important that we have your views on this section. Please complete the questionnaire at the back of this brochure to give us your feedback.

This section runs between Euston Station and Waterloo Bridge along Upper Woburn Place, through Russell Square (close to Russell Square Underground station) and Southampton Row, past Holborn Underground station, along Kingsway to Aldwych.

From Lancaster Place, the tram crosses Waterloo Bridge and continues onto the South Bank and Waterloo Station.

Advantages

- Quickest and most direct connection between the mainline stations of Waterloo and Euston
- Interchanges with the Northern Line, Victoria Line and Piccadilly Line
- Serves key cultural and tourist areas of the South Bank and Covent Garden
- Opportunity for large scale upgrade of public realm
- Reduction in traffic levels on this section of the route

Disadvantages

- Current traffic would be affected at major junctions along the route and to either side
- Construction period needs to minimise impact on traffic, pedestrians and properties
